HONGKONG, JUNE 17TH, 1875.

Emperor of China. A copy of his Burniese made a raid on a neet of gamblors at Lapsap- Season, at all events. As it is evident that the contention, he referred the Court to a number the petty tyrant of Ava is content to show most servile homage to the Monarch of "Your vassal." he is reported to say. (omploying a character used by Ministers of the Chinese Government) " would, with all humility, set forth that under the universal sway of His Holiness the 'streams and hills' are all objects of his fostering care, the a raid be made on the haunt by a strong body We understand that the keel of a stram gan kingdoms of the distant ocean become converted to his civilising rule, and as the sunflower bows before the sun, so does all mankind turn with adoration towards the Imperial person." This is a pretty stiff piece the remainder lande on the water side at to the intervention of the Dragon feast, and of adulation even for a vassal of the Dragon Belcher's Buy, so that the gumblers were com-Throne. But the letter proceeds in a strain pletely surrounded. Notwithstanding this the stow the cargo on that day, her departure was of self-depreciation that chimes in well with they were apprehended running away, baving this gross and absurd flattery. "Succeeding been seen leaving the gambling mats. Amongst to your barren and far-off dependency of Bur- them-was-one who had been an informer to mah, your vassal is impressed with the deep charged four mouths ago with bringing; favours conferred by your Heavenly Dynasty false charge of gambling against some men in when permitting his country to be enrolled amongst the territory of Yu; and in offering fourth and ninth prisoners were sent to one up, according to rule, the tribute prescribed the land of Burmah is thus included in the heaven of Yan." The epistle goes on to remark that owing to recent wars on the borders communication has long been intercepted, but now that strife has been bappily ended, it is fitting the "humble vassal" of his Imperial Majesty should at once offer tribute. This it is hoped the autocrat Central Kingdom will "deign to receive," and will further "graciously lend ear to the feelings of obedience, respect, and submission" entertained by his vassal. A list of presents follows this fulsome letter and includes five tame elephants, some ivory and jewellery, an assortment of foreign piece goods, 10,000 sheets of gold leaf and a similar quantity of silver leaf, fifteen peacock's tails and a number of miscellaneous articles.

Now whatever is published in the Peking Gazette is supposed to be authoritative, and there is no doubt that a present has been received from Mandalay. But it seems unlikely that the King of BURMAH should adopt such a servile tone to a Power which is so far distant from him, and it is not impossible security in $25 to keep the peace for one month. that a letter of congratulation to the youthful successor of Tune-cut on his accession. accompanied by a present, has been artfully construed into a payment of tribute and the terms of the communication slightly altered has been made to say what Chinese vanity prisoner was discharged. conceives he ought to have said. This has been done before; there is no reason why being a rogue and vagabond, was sent to "it should not have been done in this case, days' bard labour. A similar memorial was some yours ago, the N. C. Daily News tells us, presented by the Governor of Fobkien, relating how the King of SIAM had begged to be allowed to send tribute, and forwarding a petition equal in humility to that ascribed to the King of BURMAH. The memorial set forth that the sovereigns of Siam had for many generations been invested by the ruler of China and paid tribute without intermission; and finished by declaring that the present King, having lately come to the throne, was desirous of paying the customary tribute and prayed thrections how to proceed. A few months | days.

later, however, a letter came from the Regent of Siam, disclaiming all idea of paying tribute, and stating that the presents were sont simply in order to maintain friendly relations. Siam wished, it was true, to send an embassy, but she intended to do so only by way of Tientsin and in the same manner as they overlook the necessity of modulating their other nations. It is, therefore quite possible voices when the congregation is collected in so that there may be a good deal of bunkum about this letter from the King of BURMAH. It would be good policy on the part of Chineso statesmen to proclaim that a distant kingdom suzorainty of the Emperor of CHINA at a time when Kashgar is in open rebellion and there is a prospect of China losing her hold a sufficient inducement for them to make the it probably with a view of keeping up friendly relations and in the hope that if he drifted into hostilities with the British Indian Goveryment he should receive the support of the Chinese Government. It is probable that some further light may be thrown upon the evening services commenced at 6 o'clock. this submissive letter before long. THE CATHEDRAL SERVICES. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS. Sin,-May I take the liberty to suggest to those concerned, the advisability of dispensing with the aid of the Choir in the afternoon services on Sundays, held in the Chancel of the Cathedral. The children bave been so accustomed to sing londly to fill the Oathedral, that small a space as the Chancel; and the choir fail to remember that, to those scated within a few feet of them, the loud voices become unpleasant, more especially so when, as in the

> THE ARMY IN INDIA. hat issued report on the condition of India. It LOONS. appears that the effective strength of the established military force of British there numbers not far short of 200,000 men. Of this force 128,447 are natives, and 60,613 British, exclusive of officere. More than half of the English soldiers are stationed in the Bengal Presidency, and, as may be seen by the red-coloured blocks TWEEDS. which dot the map, the 38,000 British troops in Bengal are in garrison along the valley of the Gauges and in the Panjaub. This province, which covers an area of 105,000 square miles, about a ninth part of the total area of British. India, requires 17,127 English troops for its guard alone, or in other words nearly one-fourth of the total number of the British troops employed in India. The native army of Bengal numbers 47,814, and these, as denoted by the yellowcoloured blocks on the map, are stationed by themselves in some places, and with British troops in others. In the latter case the native troops are usually the larger force of the two. guaranteed. To the north and east of Calcutta British troops are conspicuous by the absence of the small red-coloured blacks. Except a few men at the hill stations of Darjeeling there are no European soldiers in Bengal proper, the eastern frontier districts being entrusted to a native force of 4,898 and the local police. In strong contrast to the denuded appearance of this territory, lying just within the easter frontier of India, is the province of the Panjaub within the north; western frontier, with, among others, its large garrisons of Peahawar and Rawn! Pindes, of 5,839 and 19 gons and 3,567 and 12 guns respectively. The Punjanb frontier force, under the orders of the Lieutenant-Governor of the province, numbers 12,616 men. Of these 8,928 are infantry, 2,852 cavalry, and 634 artillery. With the exception of 111 men, the infantry of this force is composed entirely of Punjaub, Sikb, or Goorkha regiments, and the artillery of the force consists of batteries manued by natives. Of the Bombay Presidency, the effective force is given in the report at 9,455 British and 21,021 native troops. Of the former 2 169 are stationed at Poonah, the beadquarters of the principal military division of the Presidency; the rest are in Central India, attached along the west coast and in Scinde. It appears from some statistics referring to the native army of Bombay which are given in the India

Blue-book that the average age of the Bombay soldier is thirty years and five months, his beight 5 feet 6 inches, and his weight 8 st. ing out the wishes of the memorial committee. 12 lbs. As regards the weight, it is to be hoped some mistake has been made in tho figures given. For although the physique of a physical standard as this weight indicates are really recruited in the Bombay Presidency, it would almost seem as if desirable recruits are an bard to obtain in India as they are in England. The army under the Commander-in-Chief at Madras supplies troops for the central provinces, the Nizam's territory, Mysore, and Burmab, as well as for the Presidency; and is composed of 25,000 natives and 8,172 British troops. At Sekunderabad, the headquarters of the forces stationed in the Nizam's territory, and at Bangalore, the headquarters of the Mysore risons of 1.684 and 1.011. British troops respectively. The rest of the European troops beexception of 2.232 in British Burmah, are st Nagpore, Belary, Madras, Trichinopoly, and forces, serving in the Madras Presidency, are the Hyderabad Contingent, the cavalry of which force is as efficient a body of troops as in November, 1803, and was consequently in Horse-troopers raised from the relies of the ruthless horsemen of Tippoo Sabib in 1799. this Work stands unrivalled. All thonew words which the Chinese have of late years been table as good as new. compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word in principle, giving a light equal to twelve ordinary and at Whampon, and will have immediate desfully iffustrated and explained, forming exer- lamps. cises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are. given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Chalmers Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English LANE, CRAWFORD AND CO. and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and unwards of 600,000 Chinese charac-Shares—45 per cent. discount.
